saltwater guys please read

Posted by Bassthum - 2011/05/21 18:33

_____

https://nyfgisales.appsolgrp.com/fgnyia/html/index.jsp

Gotta sign up for registry. No license and this is free.

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Kenny - 2011/05/22 16:31

_____

Mike what is this for? It brings you to the front page of licensing.

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Joe - 2011/05/22 20:12

_____

Hi Mike,
 I already purchased a salt water license. Did they resind the law?

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Kenny - 2011/05/23 05:20

_____

Joe wrote:
Hi Mike,
 I already purchased a salt water license. Did they resind the law?

Joe, if I am not mistaken it was rescinded last August.

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Bassthum - 2011/05/23 14:37

_____

Hope this clarifies it. Sorry for the vagueness.

http://www.dec.ny.gov/permits/54950.html

Recreational Marine Fishing Registry

On March 31, 2011, New York State Legislature established a no-fee recreational marine fishing registry to take place of the recreational marine fishing license that was previously implemented in October 2009. The new no-fee registry legislation was signed with a "sunset clause," which is set to expire on December 31, 2013. This means that if the New York State Legislature does not take further action to continue the registry after the expiration date, the recreational marine license will be implemented again.

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Joe - 2011/05/23 20:13

_____

Does anyone know if there will be a credit like Connecticut gave for someone who had purchased a salt water license?

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Kenny - 2011/05/23 21:06

_____

Joe wrote:
Does anyone know if there will be a credit like Connecticut gave for someone who had purchased a salt water license?

I don't think there is any refund...NYS sucks that way, but maybe you should check anyway!

==

Re:saltwater guys please read

Posted by Bassthum - 2011/05/25 19:11

_____

I believe there is supposed to be a refund if you purchased a lifetime.

==