Are you getting sick of being the starter boat yet? Congrats on being able to put it together on a tough day. Sorry that I did not get a chance to congratulate you at the lake.

I would have been happy catching a walleye in that chocolate milk water. That place blows.

Nice job Dennis.

What Walleye? Roberto and I caught a 5 lb. and a 6 lb. Carp. Which really sucked because until you got them to the boat they actually fought and looked like Smallmouth. What a disappointment.

Leigh, I thought that you were the one that wanted to go there. You live and learn. Would have rather been local, Oscawana or Whaley (less boat traffic). But at least the weather was nice.

I would have preferred the weather today with rain and some wind, maybe the fish would have been more active. It's not like the water could have gotten any dirtier.

Mike how far up the arms did you run. Roberto and I were in an area, that if it smelled, I would have thought that we were in raw sewage.

Thanks guys,

it wasn't easy by any means, that chocolate milk that they called water had the color and consistencey of Yoohoo....

as far as my run, I'm bound to run out of gas soon.....

None of you guys would say that if you had ever fished it in the days when it would produce 30 - 50 fish per man and if you didnt have at least 10+lbs there was no need for you to weigh in. Unfortunately the draw down KILLED this lake.

In 2003 we fished the Outcast Classic on Swinging Bridge Res.

I won that tournament with 8 Lbs. 13 Ozs. for 2 days of fishing! :huh:

In 2004 we fished tx. # 12 there and Nick won with 10 Lbs. 15.5 Ozs.! :huh:

In both tournaments there were limits weighed in at 5 Lbs. and some Ozs. so as far back as 2003 the results there have not been good! For the travel to get there this lake was a disappointment before the draw down!

Those are the facts and my opinion!
:P :huh: :dry:
