Bill, Everstart makes both deep cycle and starting batteries and a combo deep cycle/starting battery! They are inexpensive however if you want a longer lasting battery with more reserve power you have to spend a bit more!

Adonis

I will be buying 3 new deep cycle batteries this year. Mike say one of the 3 we have now doesn't hold a charge but the other 2 do. You are welcone to have the other two(I don't know how good they are). Just let me know if you want them. I will let you know when I take them out in the spring if they still look good.

We can put a test on them to make sure they can still hold a good amount of power! Are they being charged every 30 to 45 days as they should be? And if they are wet cells are they being kept where they won't freeze?

Billy it depends on what you are willing to spend there are AGM batteries that are the best but pretty expensive I have one Odyssey battery and wish I could have all 3 Odyssey batteries. I'll explain the reason they are so much better than the rest when we talk, its too much to write here! :)
