I agree. I went to the beam and 2 Bag-It brand bags. Who cares how much they weigh, when they're on the boat. You just want to get rid of your lightest one.

I know some of the guys use the Cullem right system and are pleased with it. It's just a little pricey.

everyone got jokes bitches
Re:X-Tools Posted by Kenny - 2009/02/04 18:08
You guys have fun with the beam! I use the Cull Em Rite scale, and have been "Angler Of The Year" in 2007 as well as 2008! You guys talk to me when you beat me! :woohoo: :laugh: :dry: Tee Hee!

I kinda like that saying!!! When the weights are within an ounce or two, the beam IS the only way to go. I've weighed fish on scales three times and got different weights each time. All with and ounce or two, but I cannot afford to lose a ounce. The beam don't lie!
Re:X-Tools Posted by Bassbum - 2009/02/05 04:04 are you bagging each fish that you put on the beam ?
Re:X-Tools Posted by Nicky Rat - 2009/02/05 11:25

Yes. This way they don't wiggles around too much. And you don't have to poke a hole in them.
